Background

Publish What You Pay (PWYP) is a global movement of civil society organizations in over 50 countries making oil, gas and mineral governance open, accountable, sustainable, equitable and responsive to all people. Our vision is a world where all citizens benefit from their natural resources, today and tomorrow. PWYP works to address the negative impacts of a phenomenon known as the “resource curse”, where countries rich in natural resources tend to have worse development outcomes than those without abundant oil, gas or mineral resources.

PWYP has received a grant from the Norwegian Agency for Development and Cooperation (NORAD) to implement three-year projects in three different countries located in Africa and the Middle East:

Kenya, a new oil producing country, has a relevant opportunity to raise people’s awareness and engagement in the decision-making process. The project title reflects its civil society aspirations: “Promote transparency, accountability, and participation in the oil sector”.

Lebanon, developing its nascent petroleum sector, and facing widespread corruption, is urgently in need of a civil society working in a collective context to insulate the rising industry from the decayed political and administrative conditions. The project titled “A united civil society for a transparent petroleum sector” opens a window of opportunity for the CSOs seeking an open and accountable sector.

Iraq, a major oil producer, and an EITI member, is currently undergoing major security threats due to the widespread uprisings taking place in the country where citizens are requesting more transparency and accountability. Iraqi citizens simply need to know where the revenues of their oil wealth are going. Hence, the three-year project titled: “Iraq PWYP coalition – Promoting transparency and good governance” offers a significant chance for change amid the deteriorating economic and political situation the country is witnessing.

The project aims to achieve the following objectives:

1. To promote access to reliable information, in order to enhance civic engagement and greater demand for accountability from both the governments and oil companies in Kenya. This will be realised through targeting key stakeholders including affected communities, media outlets, Ministry of Energy, and other CSOs and inter-governmental organizations (e.g. the African Union).

2. To establish a capable civil society coalition and enhance its ability to access, understand, and analyse data, and reach out to decision-makers in Lebanon. In addition, engaging academia through forming a university students and professors network is a major aim.

3. To expand and diversify the Iraqi coalition and improve its capacity to better engage in the national EITI process, including the Multi stakeholder Group (MSG). Moreover, to better analyse revenue data and to work on developing a forum for information sharing between the government, regulatory authorities, experts, oil companies, and oversight actors.

These objectives will be achieved through a series of research, capacity building, outreach, and advocacy initiatives, to inform policy and fiscal reform recommendations, and make the government more responsive to public needs; capacity building and awareness raising at community and national levels; targeted mapping to develop effective women and youth participation in the extractive industry decision-making process; and peer learning and experience sharing through exchange visits.

The project intends to achieve the following outcomes:

1. Diverse, inclusive and effective coalitions of advocacy and oversight actors exist in Lebanon, Iraq and Kenya.

2. Oversight actors (journalists, civil society, academics and affected communities) are technically equipped on relevant issues relating to petroleum sector governance (e.g. contract transparency, community engagement policies and processes, revenue data analysis).

3. Stronger relationships and enhanced information sharing between oversight actors and key stakeholders in the petroleum sector (e.g. impacted communities, EITI MSGs, government ministries, company representatives) at national and sub-national levels.

4. Enhanced opportunities for regional peer-learning and sharing of best practices among oversight actors.

Consultancy objectives:
PWYP requires a MEL professional fluent in Arabic and English to enhance the monitoring, evaluation of, and learning from the project. PWYP is hiring the consultant in order to support the project team and project partners in Iraq and Lebanon to develop and implement a comprehensive MEL framework for the project.

The consultant will deliver the following:

1. The consultant should ensure that PWYP’s project planning and MEL frameworks articulate how the project implementers are achieving the outcomes as well as the clear objectives of the activities, so that this will make MEL possible.
2. Work with partners to measure progress using the appropriate project indicators and to anticipate which data will need to be collected to understand and evidence progress and contribution.
3. Review the developed MEL frameworks for Iraq and Lebanon, with reference to the NORAD results framework and PWYP Vision 2025.
4. Ensure the sound implementation of the country-MEL frameworks and the overall project framework, and coordinate with Kenya MEL consultant and PWYP MEL coordinator.
5. Design and collect baseline data related to both Lebanon and Iraq projects and ensure the collection of subsequent data at the end of the project.
6. Support country project managers to implement their own country MEL frameworks and contribute to addressing and building their capacity gaps through training or other interventions.
7. Ensure that evidence is gathered in real-time to demonstrate whether key planned activities were effective and whether they achieved their impact.
8. Lead in the design and delivery of mid-project learning reviews so that key learnings are reported and reflected upon and incorporated into strategic and tactical decision-making.
9. Enable outcome harvests and the collection of stories of change from the project as appropriate.
10. Commission or conduct as necessary an evaluation of the project for accountability, sustainability and learning purposes. Contribute to PWYP International’s ongoing learning.

Proposed methodology
The consultant is expected to work closely and collaboratively with the PWYP Project Manager and with the national project teams throughout the period of implementation, agreeing approaches, providing expert guidance and support both in person and remotely. The consultant may be required to travel and is expected to be regularly in touch with project teams to follow up and support the best practice of the project MEL. The consultant will review project documents including; outline of the project, theory of change, project proposal narrative, results management framework, country MEL frameworks, and feed into the overall framework. In addition, the consultant will accompany the project partners to monitor their work and learn and adapt throughout the project implementation, as well as support capacity building.
Expected Outcomes

1. A clear and updated overall project MEL framework and MEL frameworks for each of the contributing countries
2. Baseline data and monitoring data is collected. Logframe data required by donors is collected
3. Implementing staff have the capacity to participate in/implement MEL
4. Documented learning reviews and recommendations and subsequent changes in tactics/strategy/implementation
5. Periodic outcome harvests detailing outcomes, contribution, evidence, as appropriate
6. Stories of change from the project
7. Project evaluation
8. Clearly articulated learnings about the approaches taken in the project both for contributing countries and PWYP International. Evidence of cross-learning.
